Major Issues Facing the International Art Market with a Focus on Latin America

The Latin American art market is bustling and setting new records. With these great opportunities comes the need to understand the potential pitfalls faced by the art world generally, and specifically in Latin America, including:

- Fakes, forgeries and misattributions
- The challenges of dealing in antiquities and other cultural property
- Art as an asset class: investment and financing

Please join us in Mexico City on December 3, 2012 for an all-day seminar where Christie's specialists, distinguished university professors, legal scholars, international attorneys and financial and art market professionals from around the world will address these and other current issues faced by the art world. Particular focus will be paid to trends in the Latin American market with an emphasis on the Mexican art market.
